during the past three decades feminist scholars have successfully demonstrated the ubiquity and omnirelevance of gender as a sociocultural construction in virtually all human collectivities past and present intrapsychic interactional and collective social processes are gendered as are micro meso and macro social structures gender shapes and is shaped in all arenas of social life from the most mundane practices of everyday life to those of the most powerful corporate actors contemporary understandings of gender emanate from a large community of primarily feminist scholars that spans the gamut of learned disciplines and also includes non academic activist thinkers however while incorporating some cross disciplinary material this volume focuses specifically on sociological theories and research concerning gender which are discussed across the full array of social processes structures and institutions as editor i have explicitly tried to shape the contributions to this volume along several lines that reflect my long standing views about sociology in general and gender sociology in particular first i asked authors to include cross national and historical material as much as possible this request reflects my belief that understanding and evaluating the here and now and working realistically for a better future can only be accomplished from a comparative perspective too often american sociology has been both tempero and ethnocentric second i have asked authors to be sensitive to within gender differences along class racial ethnic sexual preference and age cohort lines

what is the most significant aspect of current literature on gender how does this literature engage with social theory how does the recognition of gender shift the central arguments of social theory we know that gender defines and shapes our lives the question addressed by Gender and Social Theory is that of exactly how this process occurs and what the social consequences and the consequences for social theory might be the emergence of feminist theory has enriched our understanding of the impact of gender on our individual lives and the contemporary social sciences all recognise gender differentiation in the social world the issue however which this book discusses is the more complex question of the extent to which social theory is significantly disrupted disturbed or devalued by the fuller recognition of gender difference we know that gender matters but Mary Evans examines whether social theory is as blind to gender as is sometimes argued and considers the extent to which a greater awareness of gender truly shifts the concerns and conclusions of social theory written by an author with an international reputation this is an invaluable text for students and an essential reference in the field causal explanations are essential for theory building in focusing on causal mechanisms rather than descriptive effects the goal of this volume is to increase our theoretical understanding of the way gender operates in interaction theoretical analyses of gender s effects in interaction in turn are necessary to understand how such effects might be implicated with individual level and social structural level processes in the larger system of gender inequality despite other differences the contributors to this book all take what might be loosely called a microstructural approach to gender and interaction all agree that individuals come to interaction with certain common socially created beliefs cultural meanings experiences and social rules these include stereotypes about gendered activities and skills beliefs about the status value of gender rules for interacting in certain settings and so on however as individuals apply these beliefs and rules to the specific contingent events of interaction they combine and reshape their implications in distinctive ways that are particular to the encounter as a result individuals actively construct their social relations in the encounter through their interaction the patterns of relations that develop are not completely determined or scripted in advance by the beliefs and rules of the larger society consequently there is a reciprocal causal relationship between constructed patterns of interaction and larger social structural forms the constructed patterns of social relations among a set of interactants can be thought of as micro level social structures or more simply microstructures
